February Monthly Offerings

Hello:

Happy February and Happy Valentines day to you!

As you now know as of January this year we have finally been able to post the monthly featured and offering minerals on the website. This streamlines the entire process of purchasing your minerals and we hope that you will be as thrilled with it as we are.

Click on the link below to read the newsletter:

Featured Mineral

One of the characteristics of these calcite specimens that makes them unique is the hedenburgite inclusions and most of them have this sugary dusting of quartz on them.

They are from the Huanggang Mine in the Autonomous Region of Inner Mongolia, China.

Calcite Nodule- Inner Mongolia, China

A reminder: You can also purchase the featured mineral in larger sizes that will be found on our website, www.celestialearthminerals.com under Featured Minerals. When you click on order now, the sizing and pricing information will be displayed along with the mineral description.

Woo hoo! This month we were able to post the individual specimens so that you can order the one that you want and see several photos of each specimen. Below is a link to one of the specimens in the offering:

Monthly Offering

Lustrous two-toned barite has radiating clusters of tabular, gemmy crystals with translucent cores that contrast nicely with bright ivory colored bands. They are also known as two-generation barite.

This display and cabinet pieces are sure to enhance any collection.
